A Spirit of Opposition Among the Episcopalian Bishops

TO THE PROPOSITION DISCUSSED

At the Last Convention-Most of Them Think it Good to Let Well Enough Alone-Bishop Peterkin's Views Briefly Expressed.

New York, June 1 .- The Herald publishes the following: Judging from ex-pressions of Episcopalian Bishops, there will be opposition to the proposed division of the United States into archdioceses. At the last General Convention of the Protestant Church in America, held in this city in 1889, a committee of bishops was appointed to consider the advisability of so dividing the United States that a more complete organization could be secured. It has been admitted by the most prominent Episcopalians in the country that the temporal welfare of the church could be enormously enhanced if the complete organization of the Church of England were adopted in this country. Then it would not be necessary to wait for the triennial meetings of the church for the triennial meetings of the church to decide upon matters which only affect a certain portion of the country at the most, but could be settled at once by the Archbishop at a specially called Archdiocesan Convention.

This committee of bishops was instructed to report at the next convention, to be held in 1892. The subject, an exceedingly large and important one, was to receive the most profound consideration, and was to be decided upon, perhaps finally, upon the presentation of the report. At the time the committee was appointed there were insinuations that there were certain ambitious bishops who were more anxious for bishops who were more anxious for their own enlargement of rank and power than they were for the welfare of the Church. These never became more than hints, but they nevertheless stirred up a very considerable amount of annoyance among the most prominent prelates in the House of Bishops. The subject has now been under the consideration of the bishops for nearly the allotted time, and the Herald be-lieved that some clear idea might be had of the outcome from the bishops had of the outcome from the bishops themselves. In consequence of this letters were addressed to them asking them their opinior of the questions at issue. It is some what interesting to record that with few exceptions those who have answered are not in favor of any change from the present organization of the Church. These replies include opinions from some of the most influential and thoughtful members of the House of Bishops. One gives the pertinent response that he does not believe a new division of dioceses would aid in saying souls, while it might posaid in saving souls, while it might pos-sibly advance the temporal welfare of the Church. Another—the Bishop of Western New York, who is a member of the committee—while he reserves his final answer to the proposition until the reassembling of that House of Bishops, still does not hesitate to permit the use of those points in his argument in 1889 of those points in his argument in 1889 that bear directly against the introduction of archelicary that bear directly against the introduc-tion of archdioceses.

The Herald then publishes the letters in full from the Bishops, on which it bases the conclusions in the above sum-mary, that from Bishop Peterkiu, of West Virginla, is very brief and pointed, as follows:

as follows:
"I write briefly to say that I am not, as at present advised, in favor of metro-politan jurisdictions (or arch dioceses). The conditions of the parent Church of England are so different from ours that it is hard to argue from one to the other. The Episcopal Church is prospering with its present organizations. To complicate that organization by new divisions or combinations, and thus to create new ecclesiastical titles and dig-nities, would not in my judgment be helpful. "Geo. W. Peterri, Bishop of West Virginia,"

ASTOUNDING FIGURES. What the Census of India Shows-Her Vast Population.

LONDON, June 1 .- The advance sheets of the first tabulations of the census taken by the Government of British India have just been received here. The results are very surprising. The work of renumerating appears to have been very thoroughly done. On one day, February 26, 1891, $1,000,000 enumerators were engaged in the work of enumerating the inhabitants. In one district (Bengal) the staff exceeded 300,000 000.

The totals are amazing and scarcely
The totals are amazing. The popu-district (Bengal) the staff exceeded 300,000.

The totals are amazing and scarcely within our comprehension. The population of British India foots up 220,500,000 souls! In all India there were found to be 286,000,000; that is, in the regions dominated by the representative of Great Britain, the localities where the Indian Government exercises direct sovereignty, there are 220,500,000 people, while in those parts under feudatory rule, subject to British influence, there are 65,000,000 mere.

The increase from 1881, when a census was taken, has been 29,000,000. The actual increase of the population of British India, excluding regions brought within the direct British sphere of influence since 1881, was 26,000,000 human beings. Thus the rate of increase in the most densely populated portion of the globe, where there is greater congestion of people than anywhere else on the face of the earth, was in ten years 11 per cent. In the feudatory States, which are less densely populated, the increase was 141 per cent.

In England, according to the highest statistical authority, Sir James Caird, a square mile highly cultivated agricultural land gives employment to fifty persons, in the proportion of twenty-five men, old and young, to twenty-five men and boys. In Bengal it is proved by this last census that to every square mile there is an average of 474 persons. This is including all the swamps and untillable tracts, which are of great extent. It therefore appears that upon one twenty-third part of the area of the United States—in Bengal—there are 9,000,000 more people than in the whole of our Republic!

Two-thirds of the entire holdings in this province of Bengal average between two and three acres to each pensant family. A law average for each family in Bengal is four persons, so that there is less than a half acre to sustain each person. France is considered a densely populated country, with 187 persons to the square

THE HUMAN EAR.

Wonderful Construction of that Tesfal Or-gan—It Defies Dissection.

"The human ear," said a scientist to a Washington Star reporter, "is an organ the true inwardness of which the physicians have never been able to get at. They can examine the interior of the eye with ease by throwing into its dark eye with ease by throwing into its dark chamber a ray of light reflected from a little mirror, and of late they have folded it possible even to see the gray matter of the brain by looking through the little canal by which the optic nerve enters. The cavity behind the nose they inspect with the aid of a light placed far back in the mouth. They have no difficulty in seeing into the 'stomach by an electric apparatus; the intestines likewise are readily enough investigated, and the bladder also. But the ear, as to its internal arrangements, is unapto its internal arrangements, is unapproachable. It is even impossible to dissect it satisfactorily after death, for the reason that the parts collapse at once when the vital spark leaves the

There is on exhibition in New York There is on exhibition in New York an enormous sheep's-wool sponge which is said to be the largest one eyer obtained. It measures ten feet in circumference and is two feet thick, being quite solid throughout. It was fished up near the Bahama islands by the crew of a vessel engaged in that trade, and, judging by the stories of the fishermen, they had a tough time in getting their prize aboard. Being in a small dingey when the hooks fastened themselves in the sponge, the men nearly upset their boat in the effort to haul the sponge to the surface. When it the spongs to the surface. When it was finally secured the iron prongs of the hook had become straightened out under the resistence. When thoroughly soaked this monster sponge is said to hold ten pailfuls of water.
